NITRO GLYCERINE.

The newspaper press of the Pacific coast has recorded with a very brief period several lamentable and painful destructive accidents, the result of the explosion of nitro glycerine.

This compound is said to consist of a white crystalline salt or acid, employed in the manufacture of gunpowder and a liquid consisting of carbon, hydrogen and oxygen. About eighteen months ago an engineer in a copper mine of Sweden, discovered that a composition of glycerine oil and nitric acid possessed an immense explosive force, said to be equal to thirteen times the power of gunpowder. It was almost immediately introduced in mining operations, and patented in the principal countries of Europe and America.

Mr. Nobel, the inventor, has made the following statement concerning its properties:

Each 100 parts of exploded blasting fluid oil consist of: carbonic acid, 53; water, 25; oxygen, 31; and nitrogen, 18.140; and that the specific weight on the oil is 1.25, one volume produces nearly 1,300 volumes of gas—that is to say, elastic, 561; carbonic acid, 408; hydrogen, 32; and nitrogen, 236=1,238 volumes.

He also claims that it possesses the following peculiarities:

First—It cannot be ignited by simple contact with fire, thus removing all risk of accidental explosion in store.

Second—Sulphuric acid, phosphoric acid and even metal potassium will not decompose it at the ordinary temperature.

Third—It can bear two hundred and twenty degrees of heat, but explodes at about three hundred and sixty degrees.

Fourth—It possesses an exploding power thirteen to fifteen times greater than gunpowder.

Fifth—Having a specific weight of one hundred and fifty, it can be used under water.

The first accidental explosion of nitro glycerine occurred in New York City, last November, and elicited the following article from the New York Herald:

In Sweden the invention seems to have received especial favor. For Mr. Nobel states that the nitro glycerine Aktiebolaget has been established at Stockholm for working the invention in Sweden, where the oil has been used for more than six months, while the consumption of gunpowder is more and more declining, and, in recommendation of it, he claims that it is impossible in water it cannot be ignited by simple contact with fire, thus removing all risk of accidental explosion in store. The discharge can only be affected under certain circumstances indicated in the preceding paragraph for using the article. On applying a lucifer match, for instance, to the oil, the latter decomposes without explosion; and on removing the former the fire immediately extinguishes. The article may be stored for any length of time without deterioration or loss in weight; nor will phosphorus, or even the metal potassium decompose it at the ordinary temperature. It detonates when struck with a hammer, but only on the spot where the blow is received, so that a few drops distributed over an anvil produce, by various blows with the hammer, a corresponding number of detonations. The chief advantages of the patent blasting oil are, that the oil, by means of its complete gasification, and the immense expansion resulting therefrom, increased, moreover, by a tenfold greater explosive power being introduced into a bore than could be lodged in a bore of the same dimensions with gunpowder; hence a considerable and important saving of labor in boring. Blasting oil is certainly denser than gunpowder per pound, but it is cheaper if power instead of weight be taken as a standard, since a much smaller quantity will suffice. In practice it has been found that consumers of blasting oil have spent nearly the same on this article as they did formerly in gunpowder, but had for themselves that important saving of labor, the amount of which varies, of course, according to the hardness of the rock. The quickness of explosion of the oil is so great, that the effect is not diminished by rents in the rock; the consequence is that the effect on solid rock, assuming bores to be equal, is nine to ten times greater than that produced by gunpowder, while the effect on fissured rock is twenty to thirty times greater. Tamping is never required, a shaft of loose sand being sufficient in all cases. Hence accidents in charging are impossible, besides the saving in time. The blasting oil being insoluble, discharges under water or in water carrying rocks and blasting oil can only be exploded under certain conditions, and by means of a fuse, its storing and transport involve no danger.

The recent accidents have demonstrated that a slight blow, a fall or exposure to heat or atmospheric influences will produce explosion. Great care should be exercised in handling this dangerous fluid, and it certainly should not be allowed as freight on vessels carrying great numbers of passengers. Should a case of nitro glycerine explode on board one of our ocean steamers, no one would survive to relate the catastrophe. While it has been claimed by the inventor that the fluid will not admit of spontaneous combustion, the recent accidents in San Francisco and elsewhere cannot be explained in any other manner. Congress has referred to Committee on Commerce a resolution, enquiring into the expediency of prohibiting the transportation or sale of the article in the United States.

The Minnesota Chronicle says that while the friends of the Civil Rights bill jubilated on Wednesday night, by firing 200 great guns, the Chinese inhabitants of Sacramento street "fraternized" with the Methan men, and exhibited their delight by a lavish discharge of fire-crackers quite regardless of expense.

GENERAL NEWS.

New York, April 24.—It appears to be taken for granted that Secretary McCulloch will offer a five per cent loan in Paris, and the degree of public confidence in the experiment may be judged from the steady advance of national securities.

Wells, Fargo & Co. have sued Burstenblinder, Prentice & Devoe, shippers of nitro-glycerine, laying damages at one hundred thousand dollars. The Court held the defendants to bail in $100,000.

No fresh cases of cholera have appeared on the steamer England.

Washington, April 24.—The mail lettings today for the Western States were the largest ever held, and resulted in prices more favorable to the Department than they were four years ago.

Moses F. Odell was yesterday confirmed as naval officer for New York.

The President has filled all the appointments in Virginia for Internal Revenue with parties who it is said have taken the test oath.

The Quartermaster-General has records of the internments of fully one hundred thousand Union soldiers, a large portion of whom it will be necessary to remove to cemeteries. One million of dollars will be required to protect them from desecration, and it is recommended that the system be generally adopted.

Chicago, April 25.—Schenck's army establishment bill, which being considered in the House by sections for amendment, has occupied 7 days, and is only half through. It differs from the Senate bill in being more favorable to volunteers, and providing, also, for the Veteran Reserve Corps, and in reducing staff departments. The section relating to the Provost Marshal's Bureau, as amended yesterday, requires, that it shall be closed within 6 months after the passage of this bill.

The House held a protracted session last night, on the Pacific Railroad matters, when a bill in aid of the Northern Pacific Railroad was presented to vote, but opposition carried adjournment.

Outside pressure for the passage of this bill is tremendous, and the struggle in the House is very acute.

The President sent to the Senate, on the 23d, the following nominations: Col. Samuel McKelvey, of Pittsburgh, U. S. Marshal for the Western District of Pennsylvania, vice Alex. Murdoch removed; A. Stenskor, Collector of Internal Revenue, for Pa., vice Col. Taggart removed; Jonah Hettrich, Collector of Internal Revenue, for the Eleventh Pennsylvania District, and Rob. Clark, Assessor for the Thirteenth Penn. District; Maj. Gen. D. E. Sickles, Minister to the Hague, vice Jas. C. Pike resigned.

The Chicago Times' Washington special says: The President yesterday informed a prominent western Pennsylvania Congressman who had called relative to the changes being made in that State, that he intended to remove every office-holder who was opposing his policy.

The Republican Congressmen from Indiana have had a conference relative to the plan before the Reconstruction Committee which proposes to require universal suffrage in the Southern States before 1867, and four out of nine members declared themselves opposed to it.

The President yesterday sent to the Senate the proceedings of the Board composed of Generals Sherman, Meade and Thomas, which convened at St. Louis last March to recommend brevet appointments in the regular army. The Board says: If the question was a mere one we would recommend the abolition of the whole system of brevet rank, and substitute in its place some other reward for gallantry in action, such as medals commemorative of the event, or to make promotions to vacancies regardless of prior rank. They however express the decided opinion that brevet rank should only be conferred for distinguished services in the field in presence of the enemy and that meritorious services in non-combatant duty should be thus rewarded, there would be great confusion. They recommend 20 officers for brevet rank as Major Generals and 66 for brevet rank as Brigadier Generals.

In the Tennessee House of Representatives on the 23d the majority report of the Committee on Elections, recommending the admission of voters to seats, was rejected by a vote of 42 to 18 and by the same vote the minority report recommending seats to voters was adopted.

Dexter, the alleged cotton swindler, came to the Department of Alabama, for false imprisonment, damages laid at $500,000. The suit will be heard in Mobile. Dexter has engaged Ben. Butler as one of his counsel.

Messrs. R. H. Shaupen, Chas. Claiborne and R. G. Kerr, Commissioners under the Civil Rights Bill, took the oath of office on Monday, April 16th, before the Judge of the United States Court in New Orleans. No doubt the Commissioners for other States will also be promptly appointed by the respective Judges.

Washington, April 24.—It appears, from official documents, that in October last, Señor Romero addressed two notes to the Secretary of the State, remarking, orders issued by Gen. McDowell, Commanding Department of California, prohibiting exportation of land, of arms into Mexico. They were referred to the Attorney General, who says, no military officer has any right to issue an order to which he cannot lawfully compel obedience by the force under his command, the test, therefore, of the validity, in point of law, of this order, is, whether the lawful display of force is subject to his control to prevent American citizens and other persons within our jurisdiction from transporting arms or munitions of war, either directly or indirectly, into Mexico, in the present state of that country. The Attorney General says he is of the opinion that the order of Gen. McDowell was not intended to interfere with the trade conducted by the citizens of the United States, and it is to be expected, in conformity with the law. The order was intended to be directed against persons entering in Mexico, and not against persons entering in the United States. The order was intended to be directed against persons entering in the United States, and not against persons entering in Mexico.

General approaches it to be necessary to impose penalties on a belligerent power. Contraband articles are subject to seizure, in transferring the right of neutrals to transport and hostile powers to seize are conflicting rights, and neither party can charge the other with a criminal act, this is the view taken by Chancellor Kent.

Interesting to Miners.

New York City, April 3, 1886.

Dear Vegetable:—I presume a few items from this great metropolis of our country may be of interest to your many readers. Since my arrival here I have been around among the capitalists, and find much interest manifested in the mines on our coast.

The Rush Valley Mines are attracting considerable attention, and many people intend making a trip to them with a view of purchasing.

The Pahrangat Mines are discussed, also, and supposed to be very rich, but they are not so well known here as the others, not having been so thoroughly developed.

The Black Hills, I think, will be thoroughly prospected, during the coming summer.

Mining stocks are very low at present, and not much doing. The people here have been too often by "wild cat" claims; consequently, they are cautious, and want to know the status of the stock in which they invest. It would have been better for all concerned if they had been as cautious years ago. Capitalists wish to invest in reliable mining stock, and will do so at any time. There is plenty of capital here, and it will be invested when its owners know they can get something for their money.

Let your stockholders go down, on their claims, for there is a bright future for them. From my observation of things here, Stockton will be second to no mining town in the West in the course of a very short time.

Many of our Pacific friends are here, and are holding out good inducements to capitalists, with fair prospects of securing heavy investments.

Yours, &c., BRANNAN.

THE SLANDERER ON HIS TRAVELS.—He has gone from our gaze, but his song comes back to us, melodious as the howl of a coyote, and freighted with the foul odor of falsehood, which reaches from him as naturally as stench from creatures that feed on carrion. He has echoed his master's wish and bided on the hell-hounds of assassination till they lolling tongues lapped up the warm blood of a victim, and then, backed by the good-will of all the murder-league of polygamy, barks defiance at those whose manhood prompted them to tear the "destroying angel" from his kneel in the house of him who owns them both. Not content with seeing his blood spilled, this ghoul preys upon the dead and pursues with base slanders the memory of him that is slain. His departing voice returns from distance to his admiring disciples, but evermore burdened with the same sing-song of detraction. And so he wanders forth, depleted even by those who make use of his base abilities, his fugitive eye always endeavoring to escape the direct glance of honesty and never daring to look the world squarely in the face—a miserable wretch who finds his punishment in the evidently perpetual sense of his own unworthiness and insignificance. Such is the scribbling polygamist who recently flitted hence, eastward bound—his identity will be infallibly recognized by every one, Mormon or Gentile, who has ever had the misfortune to come in contact with the vile creature.

THEATRICAL.—During the past week our citizens have been highly entertained by the admirable performances of the Bray Concert and Dramatic Troupe at the Academy of Music. The reputation of the troupe is almost world-wide, and it is without doubt the finest combination of comic and musical talent on the Pacific slope.

Walter Bray is well known in all the cities of California and Nevada as one of the best comedian and minstrel performers on the coast. Ned Ward, as an Ethiopian comedian and gymnast, is unequalled. Joe Mabbott is one of the best corner players and Balladists that ever visited Salt Lake City. Mr. Johnson excites the wonder of every one who visits the Academy of Music by his skill in performing on two leading instruments at the same time, while Mr. Samelson, the celebrated violinist, is very justly entitled to the enviable reputation he has obtained as a musician. Potter, Townsend and Master Joe are favorably known to the theatre-going public.

Of the lady members of the Troupe we cannot speak in too high terms.—Miss Flora Bray is a universal favorite wherever she goes, and it is astonishing that a person of her age could attain such a proficiency as a vocalist, while her easy, natural style as an actress charms all who see her. Miss Carrie Chapman, the accomplished danseuse, is also a decided favorite with the devotees of the Academy. As a light comedian as well as a dancer, she is unequalled. Mrs. Bray enjoys a high reputation as a vocalist, but has not yet made her debut as such before a Salt Lake audience, but as an actress she has made a very favorable impression.
